Daily Evening Herald
AND COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER.

No. 108. ST. LOUIS, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1835. Vol. I.

400 lbs. Eng. and Am. Calomel in store for sale at the sign of the good Samaritan, aug 22 JONES & BACON.

100 Gro. Carolina Chalk, for sale at the sign of the Good Samaritan. june 18.

bbls rectified Whiskey, landing from steam boat Friendship, for sale by EADS & BUCHANAN.
june 22

PURE SPIRITS.—10 bbls 4th proof, for sale by july 3. EADS and BUCHANAN.

BLACKING.—150 gross superior shoe blacking, for sale low by july. EADS and BUCHANAN.

HARDENS' CIDER VINEGAR.—16 barrels received per s b Flora, and for sale by aug 12 VAIRIN & REEL.

JUST received, and for sale by B. L. TURNBULL, 1000 pieces Wall Paper, assorted patterns, with border to match; also, a large lot of the newest Music for the Piano Forte, with an assortment of Stationery, &c.

A CARD.—For the convenience of the sick, persons can be accommodated with medicines, at all hours of the night, by calling at Apothecaries Hall, 75 Main street.
june 12 J. H. & M. Y. JOHNSON.

LEATHER.—A large and valuable lot of Spanish Soal Leather, just received, and for sale by june 20. J. F. COMSTOCK.

CALF SKINS.—A fine lot of Eastern tanned, just received and for sale by june 20. J. F. COMSTOCK.

COGNIAC BRANDY AND PORT WINE.—pipes Cogniac Brandy, J. J. Dupuy's brand; 5 or casks Port Wine, landing from s b Majestic and for sale june 29 VAIRIN & REEL.

ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SEMINARY FOR BOYS.

THE subscriber would respectfully inform the public, that he has repaired the spacious and commodious building situated at the junction of Fourth and Myrtle streets, where he proposes to open on Monday, 27th July, a school, in which will be taught the usual English branches, together with Mathematics and the Latin and Greek Languages. He has engaged the services of Mr Justin C. Loring, a recent graduate of a respectable college in New-England, who will take charge of the classical department. Hevengages that no endeavors shall be wanting to promote the improvement of his scholars, and accordingly solicits a share of public patronage.
Elementary department, Orthography, Reading, and Mental Arithmetic, $4,00
Junior department, embracing the above, with Geography, History, Writing, Grammar, Arithmetic, and Declamation, 6,00
Senior department, Algebra, Geometry, Rhetoric, Composition, Natural Philosophy, Logic, Latin and Greek Languages, 10,00
July 25 JONA. HUNTINGTON.

Jones & Bacon,
HAVE just received at the sign of the "GOOD SAMARITAN," by steamboat Claiborne and Boonslick a full assortment of fresh
DRUGS AND MEDICINES,
Also, Glass, Paints, Oils and Dye Stuffs, and are now prepared to fill orders, cheap for cash or approved credit.
june 8 3

SELECT ACADEMY.

THE subscriber, for many years engaged in the instruction of youth, and for the last eleven years Principal of Erasmus Hall Academy, Flatbush, L. I., one of the oldest and most reputable institutions in the State of New York, now offers his services to the citizens of St. Louis, in the capacity of Teacher.
He has taken rooms at the corner of Market and Main Streets, for the present, where he solicits a share of patronage.
Instruction will be furnished in the various departments of English, including Spelling, Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, English Grammar, Geography, History, Rhetoric, Astronomy, Natural Philosophy, with the Latin and Greek Languages.
Youth of both sexes will be received: as, if successful, he intends to introduce his family, and establish a first rate Boarding and Day School, in which all the branches of a finished male and female education will be taught, including instruction in Singing, and on the Piano Forte.
For the satisfaction of such as may be willing to support him, he has liberty to refer to the President and Professors of Yale College, New Haven; the President and Professors of Rutger's College, New Brunswick, New Jersey; to J M Matthews, the Chancellor of the University of New York; Dr. Miller, Professor in the Theological Seminary, Princeton; to E S Ely, of Marion College, and very numerous patrons, for more than twenty years, in New York, and to J W Paulding, J S Pease and D F Lee, Esqs. St Louis.
N B The Exercises have already commenced.

TERMS OF TUITION.

Spelling and Reading,	$5 00
With Writing and Arithmetic,	7 50
English Grammar, Geography, History, Rhetoric, &c.,	10 00
Latin, Greek, and Mathematics,	12 50

All payable in advance.
J. W. KELLOGG, A. M.
Of Yale College, Conn.
St Louis, Sept 1, 1835.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN—That the undersigned has obtained from the Clerk of the County Court, of St. Louis, letters of Administration upon the estate of James Graman, deceased, bearing date August 4th, 1835; that all persons indebted to said estate, are requested to make immediate payment; and that all persons having claims against said estate, are requested to exhibit them properly authenticated, within one year from the date of said letters, or they may be precluded from having any benefit of said estate, and if said claims are not presented within three years, they will be forever barred. aug 25. THOS. TUMELTY, Adm'r.

25 Boxes Tobacco, just rec'd and for sale by Sept 12th THOS. WARE, Water-st.

STONE PIPES.—20,000 gross stone pipes, just rec'd. and for sale by THOS. WARE.
Sept 12 Water Street.

VAIRIN & REEL,
HAVE on hand and offer for sale the following articles:
230 hhds prime N. O. Sugar; 70 bbls loaf do
16 boxes White Havanna do; 5 boxes Brown do
460 bags Havanna Coffee; 140 do Rio do
200 do St Domingo do; 300 bbls. Kenhawa salt
700 bags Liverpool blown salt; 570 do ground alum do
150 bbls whiskey; 25 pipes and hf. pipes Cog. Brandy
40 do 4th pf New York Brandy; 50 qr. casks Sherry and M. Madeira Wine; 10 do do Old Port
25 In'dia bbls M. Madeira; 20 qr casks sweet Malaga do
5 bls N E rum; 15 do alcohol
20 baskets Madeira wine bottles; 10 casks claret Wine
8 do Champaigne wine; 20 boxes claret do
150 kegs nails; 90 boxes cotton yarn long and short reel
185 boxes Tin Plate, well ass'd, all Pontpool brand.
100 do Y Hyson, Imperial, and Gunpowder Teas
40 do sperm candles; 40 do MR raisins
173 do and kegs manuf'd Tobacco
40 bls Mackerel No 2 and 3; 50 tubs do No 1 and 2
300 kegs Brooking's and 30 do Dupont's Powder
Together with pepper, allspice, ginger, Madder, Indigo, wrapping Paper, tea do, printing do, White Lead, Window Glass, 8-10, and 10-12, Whiting, Lamp black, Ep. Salts, sweet Oil, sperm Oil, Ale, Vinegar, and almost every article in the Grocery line, which will be sold on accommodating terms for good paper, and at reduced prices for cash. Persons wishing to purchase, would do well to call and examine their stock. june 22.

B. L. TURNBULL,
Will publish, in the course of a month or six weeks,
The Illinois Officer's Guide.

THE publisher has taken great pains in the compilation of this work, to make it one of practical utility—a compendious and correct guide to business men of all denominations—a cheap and legal adviser, by the assistance of which, they can dispense with courts of justice, and the train of evils which grow out of litigation.
The "GUIDE" will be published in a duodecimo form, containing about 400 pages—its contents will be various, but strict utility—such as the declaration of independence—articles of confederation—constitution of the U. States and Illinois—the duties, powers and liabilities of justices of the peace, constables, township trustees, recorders, surveyors, &c. &c. The laws in relation to attachment, trespass, defence and other common modes of action, a table of officers fees, tax tables, a system of book keeping, interest table. Also, an extensive collection of legal and condensed forms of conveyancing, containing all the necessary "guides" to enable every man to be his own conveyancer.
The laws of naturalization, of pensions, of the patent office, and of claims for compensation, for losses sustained in the Indian expedition of 1832, with other and valuable matter.
The "GUIDE" will be sold by the subscriber at his store in St. Louis, and in the principal stores in Illinois.
The subscriber has also in a course of preparation "A FORM BOOK" for the State of Missouri, on the above plan, which will correspond, with the newly revised code of laws adopted by the legislature of 1834-5.
The price of each of the above works will be $1,50.
july 10

St. Louis Classical Seminary,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.

THIS Institution, intended for Boarding, and Day scholars, is now in successful operation.
Its friends and patrons may be assured, that no pains, on the part of the Teachers, will be spared, to render it worthy of their support and the fostering care of the community.
The Teachers that have been employed, are eminently qualified, by their superior acquirements and experience in teaching, to instruct in all the solid and polite branches of female education.
The exercises will commence annually on the second Monday in September, and close on the Saturday following the third Monday in July. The year will be divided into two terms; and each term into two quarters consisting of eleven weeks each. There will be school on Saturdays, in the morning. At the expiration of the first term in February, there will be a vacation of one week.
Pupils, admitted any other time, than at the commencement of the quarter, will be charged the full amount of the quarter's tuition.
French will be solely spoken to those who are studying that language.

TERMS OF TUITION.

For tuition in the Preparatory Department,		$5 50	per quarter.
" "	Junior,	8 50	do
" "	Second,	10 50	do
" "	Senior,	12 50	do
" "	French,	8 00	do
On the Piano Forte and in Singing,		12 00	do
" "	Board	30 00	do

Bills to be paid quarterly in advance.
H. WILCOX, Principal.
Sept. 7, 1835.

J. C. HICKS,
Painter and Glazier,
No. 3 Olive st., St. Louis, between Main and Water st.
PAINTING, gilding, bronzing and glazing, of every description, done in the best manner and on the most reasonable terms.
Fancy Signs, Military Flags, Banners, &c. painted in the neatest style. Copal and spirit Varnishes ready mixed Paints, Glass, Putty, &c. for sale. july 7.

CANDLES, STARCH, &c.—25 boxes dipt candles; 10 do starch. For sale by Sept 29 EADS & BUCHANAN.

600 lb Tantello Liquorice Paste, just received and for sale, at the Sign of the Good Samaritan.
aug 22. JONES & BACON.

JUST Received and for sale by BRAY & BAILY
500 boxes Spanish Segars, assorted brands
25 boxes superior sweetscent Tobacco
50 canisters natural James River leaf Tobacco
2 cases fine cut cavendish Tobacco
250 lbs Rappee Snuff
200 lbs Maccaboy do
1 cask congress do
1 do Copenhagen do
250 lbs Scotch Snuff in bladders
200 dozen Snuff in bottles. Sept 19.

DAILY EVENING HERALD,
PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY
R. W. TREADWAY,
Locust St., Saint Louis, No. 2 doors west of Jno. Riggin's Store.

TERMS.

Daily Paper,	$6,00
Weekly Paper,	$2,50

MISCELLANY.

From the N. Y. Herald.

LOVE, DISAPPOINTMENT, AND REVENGE.

AN EXTRACT FROM THE LIFE OF A YOUNG MAN NOW DEAD.

"Soon after my return from P. I was desired by my guardian to take a letter to an acquaintance of his. I did as desired, and rapping at the door, delivered my note, saying I awaited an answer. Of the contents of the note, I was ignorant, and little did I think that that unfortunate little piece of paper would lead to such ends. The room into which I was shown was small, but neatly and comfortably furnished—but at first I observed but one thing there. A young lady, as soon as I entered the room, sprang towards me, and seizing my hand shook it most cordially, called C. and—I fell in love. She was the most animated being I ever knew. Her bright blue eye was mischief personified—her person was most beautiful, and every motion graceful—her face was ever clothed in smiles,—in such smiles, as man, to gain, would yield almost his soul. She was ever in motion, and her clear silvery laugh was "like the melody of birds." Such was Kate——when first I knew her. She was then fifteen, and I had reached and just passed my eighteenth year. The nature of my reception astonished me beyond all measure. I had never been in the house before, had never heard of her. She could not say the same, for so often had she heard of me, and so much had she desired to know me, that the only introduction I had was the note, whose contents ran thus:

"This is C——."

And who was Kate? The daughter of a gentleman reduced in fortune, and broken in health and spirits.—Let that suffice. She was ——let her alone. If once you saw her, you never could think of asking whose she was, but of dreaming whose she might be. She looked at me, I looked at her, and we fell in love. In conversation, I found her all that her appearance had promised. Lively, witty, and sarcastic, and a gentleman who came in while I was there, was nicely cut up and served for my edification and amusement. I remained an hour, perhaps more—I did not count the minutes—I only know that after leaving the house, and having nearly reached my home, I turned back, and most earnestly requested permission to re-enter and spend another half hour. Need I say that it was granted, and need I say that from that hour we could not live apart. So it was. When near Kate I was happy, perfectly, supremely happy. When from her, absolutely miserable.

There was a gentleman named J—, who was a frequent, and, as I took the liberty of thinking, rather too frequent a visitor at Kate's. He was not handsome, and on that score I was at my ease,—but he was wealthy, and on that score I was any thing but easy. I was not long in finding out that I was in love. But whatever my heart might have felt, or whatever my eyes might have told, my lips breathed not a word,—Kate saw that I was in love, and I believe she expected me to tell her so. I did not, I could not—for my life I dared not. I loved her intensely, ardently, and devotedly. I loved her with a fervor known only to a young heart, then feeling its first pangs.

One evening about six, as I was sitting in my room, thinking of course of Kate, and earnestly commending J., to the protection of his Satanic majesty, a knock aroused me, and, J. entered in propria persona. He came up, and in the most open and friendly manner proffered his hand. I accepted it mechanically, but it was almost with loathing. He was one of my best friends, and him I hated with a hatred only to be satisfied with revenge—deep, dark revenge. He did not know it, and never for an instant suspected that he ever had caused me a moment's uneasiness. Fool that he was, and deeply did he pay for—being my friend.

"Come, C.," said he, "I want your aid in dressing. Why, damn it, man, why don't you not congratulate me on my approaching happiness?" I started.—"Congratulate! happiness! Why J—what do you mean?"

"Mean! why to-night Kate will be mine."

"Oh God! that night Kate was—she whom I loved so fondly—so devotedly, she who had led me on step by step until I was so completely enveloped in her toils that escape was impossible; she who in every look, every word, every action, had said "Love me!" she—my Kate! I know not how I restrained myself, I know not how I commanded my feelings: but I did—and calmly, coolly and dispassionately congratulated him—wished him all happiness, and as I uttered the words, I vowed in my heart that happiness with her he never should enjoy. He finished his toilet and left me, but not without an invitation to be present at the ceremony. I plead illness—was believed and excused.

When he left me I locked the door and threw myself upon the bed in a state of feelings I will not attempt to depict. Love, hatred and revenge alternately had possession. Long I strove to master my passions, long I struggled against my destiny. My reflections were ended with an heartfelt vow that "never, while I lived should he enjoy one hour's happiness with his wife." Why did I not die before I was suffered to remember and execute that vow? Why did not an avenging bolt strike me on the spot! No, I was spared for worse tortures. My Conscience.

I calmed myself, and about eleven another knock startled me. I could not imagine who could want me at that hour, but I arose, and on opening the door, was astonished by the entrance of J——. What could this mean?—His wedding night, and he here at such an hour! Alas, poor fool! he thought he had gained in Kate an angel. Time taught him she was a woman. He had only been married in order to "render every thing safe"—these were his own words. He was to sail in the morning at day-break for a foreign country; how my heart leaped as he said it. He came to ask a favor, a great favor; one he was sure I would grant for my friendship for him, and one he would ask of none but me. He said he knew I loved his wife. How that word grated on my ear! Love her! yes, I did love her, and he was sure that my friendship for him, and affection for her, would not permit me to refuse. He requested me to protect his wife should my assistance be necessary—to watch over her, and guard her from all that could harm her, in thought, word or deed. His absence would not be long (four or five months.) I promised.

In the morning (he staid with me that night) he left, and as I saw the swelling sails distended by a favorable breeze, and heard the cheerful cry of the mariner as the anchor was weighed, I think I never was more supremely happy.

He was gone—Kate was now in my charge; she knew it, for he had said that on all occasions I must be applied to.

Two days after he sailed I was sent for by Kate. I went, I saw her, and with a heart nearly bursting, addressed her "as the bride of another." She noticed my emotion, and inquired the cause of it. I could not—no, had worlds been offered I would not have denied myself the pleasure I then enjoyed.

With all the vehemence of my character I broke out into the most impassioned declaration of warm, ardent, devoted love. Told her of hopes blighted—affections seared—my best feelings deadened by her coquetry. At that word, she fainted—she had never dreamed that I had loved her. She was too young to think of it, and though she was never so happy as when with me, she hardly knew her own heart. When she recovered, I learned her tale. A series of deception had been carried on by all parties save her and myself. I had been used by her cunning parents, as a sort of decoy, or rather scarecrow, for many persons, young as I was, seeing me there so very frequently, would of course be led to suspect that I was a favored suitor. She had never dreamed of deceiving me, she had never until now, known how much she loved me, but now, she told me all. She told me she did love me. And we vowed revenge, and deeply indeed, were all our wrongs redressed. She was mine, mine only, and in that guilty passion, I felt more pleasure than in the fondest, purest love, that ever blessed my wishes. Long, long did we revel, in this blissful state, and as the time approached for the return of her husband (I love the word now) her apprehensions became more fearful. I offered her my arms, my protection, and my love, and they were accepted. I returned, his home was deserted—his wife had fled and none knew whither. He died a broken hearted, wretched man. And Kate, what can I say of her? Novelty was my passion—I grew tired of her, she clung to me with a tenacity that woman's love alone dare attempt. Often, often, when I have entered sullen, dejected, and dispirited, often has her sunny smile, bringing back recollections of our halcyon days, of pure, holy love, often have I wept, and prayed that I might "sin no more."

Kate, poor Kate, she's dead; and I must ac-